(B2) Hippe Can Dance With Boogie (Stevie Kotey Remix)

Cat no: EMINDS007 / Release date: October 2008

Hailing from Japan Free Disco moved to London two years ago and brought with him his taste for deep music. Already an accomplished composer, record collector and disco selector when he sent out a demo of his new recordings it wasn't just Electric Minds that took note but also New York's Rong Music. Having previously released techno & house, under an alias, on Japan's New World label Free Disco wanted to create new compositions inspired by his love of disco from the 70's and 80's. Electric Minds will be releasing his single this October while Rong Music also release later on in the year. Free Disco is also an accomplished DJ having played in many clubs in Tokyo, Ibiza, Lisbon & London.

The A side "Psychedelic Symmetry" is a fast paced track made for the dance floor. Heavy bass through out which is bound to find favor with the house heads as well as the lovers of the nu disco sound. The B side "Hippe Can Dance With Boogie" leans towards the cosmic with a spacey sound accompanied by live bass and keys.

For this project we have commissioned our first remix with Stevie Kotey. Kotey chose to remix "Hippe Can Dance With Boogie" creating a spacey disco excursion. He has added live percussion, new drums and replayed the synths so the full treatment from one of today's finest remixers !

All in all an excellent package which is sure to favor worldwide. The demos have already been played by Faze Action, Yam Who, Stevie Kotey, Toby Tobias and also at our recent gigs but here is a selection of the feedback:
